

Robin Richardson

Robin is a director of the Insted educational consultancy, based in London. Previously he was director of the Runnymede Trust and for several years before that was chief inspector for education in a London borough. His publications over the years include Daring to be a Teacher (1990) and In Praise of Teachers (2003). In the period 2004–06 he worked as a consultant for the DfES on countering racist bullying in schools. More recently he has worked with the DCSF in relation to equalities legislation and is co-author with Berenice Miles of Racist Incidents and Bullying in Schools: how to prevent them and how to respond when they happen, published in October 2008. His most recent book, published in April 2009, is Holding Together: equalities, difference and cohesion.
